This Missouri fiddle tune comes from the playing of Nebraska fiddler Bob Walters (1889-1960). It has three parts, with the middle part half the length of the other two, a common structure found in many old time tunes. In this setting, I get most of the notes mid-neck on the inside strings rather than in open position, in order to be able- strange as it may first sound- to make better use of the open 1st and 2nd strings.
